The Olympian Style of Fred Hooper

by Rommy Faversham

By the time Fred W. Hooper became involved with Thoroughbreds in the summer of 1943, the tall forty-five year old Southern construction magnate had already proven himself to be a particularly quick study.

Born into a large family in rural Georgia, young Hooper evolved into a jack of all trades, if not Renaissance man, with a kaleidoscope of callings including cowboy, barber, lumberjack, school teacher, steel worker, not to mention state boxing champion, before his fortunes skyrocketed in the highway construction business during the economic boom of the mid-1920s. "What the other fellow could do a lot of, I figured I could do a little of", Hooper later summarized.

Over the course of the next six decades, Hooper's own charges typically demonstrated themselves to be much like their master: brilliant, versatile, and good to travel.

As war raged throughout Europe and the Pacific in 1942, American yearling prices were hitting rock-bottom, the average an enemic $638. The following season, Fred Hooper began to actively purchase Thoroughbred yearlings, sending his new prospects to be raised on his five thousand acre Circle H Farm located several miles south of his business headquarters in Montgomery, Alabama.

Considering how unorthodox the pedigrees of his home-breds eventually became, Hooper's early acquisitions are noted for having generally represented the most fashionable and successful of contemporary bloodlines. Hooper was usually focused on the progeny of Sir Gallahad III and his brother Bull Dog, as well as Blenheim II and Bull Lea - all premiere sires of their era.

Hooper wasted no time cementing his name within the annals of racing when Hoop Jr., an exceptionally well bred son of Sir Gallahad III, found rain-soaked Churchill Downs to his liking when wiring his peers in the war-delayed Kentucky Derby of June, 1945. Incredibly, Hooper had annexed American racing's greatest prize with the first Thoroughbred for which he had ever signed a sales ticket.

Throughout the remainder of the 1940s and early 1950s, Fred Hooper continued to add to his racing stable and subsequent breeding operations, mainly by way of yearling sales. Over this formative period, Hooper spent roughly three-quarters of a million dollars in acquiring a total of some seventy-five yearling colts and fillies. Indeed a fruitful collection of runners, the track earnings from the four richest of these, by themselves, exceeded the initial investment.

In 1946, Hooper campaigned the first of, what was to be for him, an exceptionally long roll call of brilliant juveniles. Education (by Ariel) was named co-champion juvenile colt after winning a half dozen stakes races and becoming his division's biggest earner ($164,473).

In 1948, the Hooper barn was best represented by a pair of young speed demons. Ocean Drive, a son of the Bull Dog stallion Coldstream, was rated a pound better than his stablemate, Olympia - each one victorious in a trio of freshman stakes events. At age three, Ocean Drive continued winning black-type sprints, while Olympia flirted with greatness.

Olympia's 'classic' season actually began during the first week of January with a most unusual contest that pitted the mercurial Thoroughbred against Quarter Horse champion Stella Moore in a two furlong (440 yard) exhibition match at Tropical Park. Olympia got up to beat the filly by a head and was then promptly dispatched on an arduous course of Derby preps which traversed the countryside twice, netting four important events (the San Felipe, Flamingo, Wood Memorial & Derby Trial) in the process. As a result of this success, Olympia entered the starting gate for the 1949 Kentucky Derby as odds-on favorite. The bay speedster lasted on the lead to the top of the stretch before faltering, finishing a well-beaten sixth. Taken off the Triple Crown trail and shortened up in distance, Olympia responded with a half dozen more black-type victories, through age four, before being retired to stud (with a total of fifteen wins from 41 starts and $365,632 in earnings).

Olympia had an interesting set of bloodlines. Bred by Hoop Jr.'s trainer, Ivan Parke, the colt was purchased by Hooper as a yearling.

The closest inbreeding in Olympia's pedigree was the 4X5 duplication of 1901 Yorkshire Oaks winner Santa Brigida, she being the third dam of his sire, imported Hyperion stallion *Heliopolis, as well as the second dam to *Light Brigade, sire of Olympia's granddam.

These types of inbreeding patterns to superior matriarchs would later become featured among a number of Hoopers's best home-breds. Hooper enjoyed particular success duplicating the strains of the key matrons Selene and Lavendula - even though, his favorite source of inbreeding was eventually to become Olympia himself.

By the early to mid-1950s, Fred Hooper was becoming less interested in buying winners and much more avid about breeding his own. As it turned out, the eclectic band of young breeding prospects he chose to regenerate for himself was not particularly representative of the most expensive and/or seemingly fashionable purchases he had previously made.

Hooper's first five stallions included Olympia, Hoop Jr. and the moderately-bred Education - these three standing in Kentucky. At Hooper's farm in Alabama stood Pry, a non-stakes winning son of Questionnaire, as well as the Argentine import *Quibu whose stout bloodlines (by Meadow, a son of St. Leger winner Fairway, out of a Son-In-Law line mare) suggested Hooper recognized the need for some much needed stamina to go with all of the speed he was attempting to harvest.

Hoop Jr. (113 foals, 3 SWs), Education (154 foals, 6 SWs) and Pry (61 foals, 3 SWs) eventually proved themselves to be mediocre stallions, while *Quibu (84 foals, 6 SWs) earned somewhat better status in a limited role.

Meanwhile, Olympia (324 foals, 40 SWs), standing at Danada Farm, Ky. enjoyed the success of a breed shaper - both as a sire, and later on, as an enduring maternal influence as well.

Most of the time, Hooper practiced 'home-breeding' - usually mating his broodmares with one of his own sires. On fewer occasions, he chartered an 'outside' stallion for service. Table I records the best of his 120 total stakes winners bred during his five-plus decades as a breeder, showing the success he realized using both home and outside stallions.

During the late 1950s and early 60s, Hooper's juveniles were often among the best in the Midwest, if not the nation - starting with the Olympia colts, Greek Game and Alhambra in 1956 and 1957.

In 1957, Hooper sent an Olympia mare to the imported English 2,000 Guineas winner *My Babu and bred his best son Crozier. Ranked fourth in the nation (behind Hail To Reason) as a juvenile, Crozier was to be constantly frustrated by Carry Back at age three, running second to the Florida-bred in a number of important contests including the 1961 Kentucky Derby. In all, Carry Back, a subsequent Racing Hall Of Famer, outran Crozier in seven of their 10 encounters, perhaps costing the Hooper colt his own placement in that honor roll. Crozier later won the Santa Anita Handicap at age five and ultimately gained a measure of revenge on his arch rival with a far superior career at stud (368 foals, 33 SWs).

In 1958, Hooper sent another Olympia mare to handicap champion Crafty Admiral and got that one's best son, Admiral's Voyage. Winner of the 1962 Louisiana Derby and Wood Memorial, Admiral's Voyage lost a nose decision to year-end champion Jaipur in the Belmont Stakes.

Admiral's Voyage proved to be a relatively uninspiring stallion (249 foals, 8 SWs), all but for his best daughter, Pas De Nom, who insured his appearance within the best of contemporary pedigrees when she produced three time leading sire Danzig.

In 1966, Fred Hooper sold his heavy construction business and moved his farm from Alabama to Ocala, Florida where he became a major force in the development of that state's Thoroughbred industry.

Three years later, he bred his best horse ever, the exceptionally tough and versatile distaffer Susan's Girl - winner of a record 24 stakes races over five seasons. A daughter of Belmont Stakes winner Quadrangle, Susan's Girl's first two dams were sired by Hooper stallions *Quibu and Olympia, respectively.

Ranked second (behind Numbered Account) in 1971 as the nation's best juvenile filly, Susan's Girl followed up with masterful championship seasons at ages three, four and six. Quite soon thereafter (1976), she was inducted into Racing's Hall of Fame.

Another key foal of 1969 was Tri Jet, bred as the result of Hooper dispatching one of his Olympia mares to the Futurity winning Tom Fool stallion Jester and getting that one's best son.

Tri Jet was best at ages four (Hawthorne Gold Cup (G2) and five when he annexed the San Pasqual Handicap (G2 - beating stablemate Susan's Girl) and the Whitney Stakes (G2). Returned to Hooper Farms in Florida, Tri Jet became a successful new source of winners (502 foals, 45 SWs) for his owner-breeder.

Of all the hundreds of fillies bred by Fred Hooper the one he came to most regret losing was Smartaire (1962, *Quibu -Art Teacher by Olympia) who was claimed from him for $5,000 during the summer of her 3 YO racing season. She was later purchased for $36,000 by Jim Ryan's Ryehill Farm at the 1972

Keeneland fall mixed sale.

Seven years hence, Smartaire was named 1979 Broodmare of the Year when her daughter Smart Angle (by Quadrangle) was juvenile filly champion and her 3 YO son Smarten (by Cyane) won four graded Derbies. Smart Angle's full brother, Quadratic, who was two years older, had already enjoyed multiple stakes winning seasons at ages 2 and 3.

Ironically, Quadratic and Smart Angle's pedigree had been specifically fashioned after Hooper's Susan's Girl: all of them by Quadrangle from Hooper bred daughters of Quibu out of Olympia mares.

Hooper may have been 'hoist by his own petard' when Smart Angle beat his home-bred Jet Rating (by Tri Jet) by a length and a half in the Grade 1 Spinaway Stakes.

By the early 1970s, much of Hooper's stallion and broodmare band in Florida had become particularly rich in the blood of Olympia necessitating either the restocking of his farm's bloodlines or initiating the gradual accumulation of Olympia's strains in subsequent generations. Hooper chose to experiment heavily with the latter.

Table II diagrams the ten female families Hooper used to enjoy his greatest success as a breeder and charts the extent to which Olympia was subsequently crossed.

By the mid-1970s, most of Hooper's best runners were now demonstrating inbreeding patterns to Olympia including all three of his Belmont Futurity winners (Wedge Shot in '73, Crest Of The Wave in '78 and Copelan in '82).

The richest horse Hooper ever bred was Precisionist, a son of Crozier from a Forli mare out of a daughter of Greek Game (Olympia 3X4). The game and versatile Precisionist had the speed of a sprint champion (1985) as well as the stamina to prevail three times at 1 1/4 miles in the best of company. His eight battles with the outstanding handicapper Greinton (ending in a 4-4 draw) represents one of the best rivalries in Southern California racing history.

The best runner Hooper bred during the 1990s was three time Grade 1 winning turf specialist Diplomatic Jet. His pedigree carried a total of five strains of Olympia.

Perhaps, the “poster boy” for Olympia’s build-up in Hooper’s foals was 1998 Tropical Park Derby (G3) winner Draw Again whose pedigree tallied an amazing seven strains of the farm’s foundation stallion (see Table II).

Clearly, the progressive accumulation of Olympia’s best strains at Hooper’s Ocala nursery was the result of both availability and intent. It certainly became instrumental in the continuation of the farm’s brilliant issue.

The question might then be posed, Hooper-breds aside, how frequently has Olympia and his duplications appeared within contemporary pedigrees?

To formulate a ballpark estimate, the 2006 Thoroughbred Times Stallion Directory Index lists a total of 15 (3%) of the 500 featured stallions as carrying a strain of Olympia within four generations.

Using three percent as the current frequency, one can statistically predict ($.03 \times .03 = .0009$) that only about one in every thousand American thoroughbreds figure to demonstrate random inbreeding to Olympia within five generations.

Clearly, the pedigrees of Fred Hooper’s home-breds came to express a distinct and characteristic pattern.

But, was this concentration of Olympia’s blood just more of “Hoop’s magic” or has inbreeding to this prepotent ancestor been advantageous for others as well? Table III’s list of key stakes winners with inbreeding to Olympia not bred by Hooper certainly tends to support the latter.

As detailed in Table III, over the past three decades, a remarkable number of stallions bearing Olympia's blood have sired some of their best offspring when bred to a mare also conveying at least one Olympian strain.

Headlining this impressive list is Danzig's best daughter Dance Smartly (Can) whose undefeated 3 YO championship season included capture of the 1991 Canadian Triple Crown and Molson Million over colts and concluded with the beating of her elders in the Breeders' Cup Distaff (G1). Danzig, as previously noted, was out of a daughter of Hooper's Admiral's Voyage while Dance Smartly's broodmare sire was Smarten, son of the former Hooper mare Smartaire.

It is particularly fitting, then, that Sam-Son Farm's Dance Smartly shared her induction ceremonies into Racing's Hall of Fame in 2003 with none other than Precisionist. These two seemingly dissimilar individuals were both most closely inbred to the relatively uncommon progenitor, Olympia, both supported by the exceptionally strong roots of Fred Hooper.
